Natural Forces Announces SucraShield™ is now listed by OMRI for Organic Production

Davidson, NC – April 15, 2009

SucraShield sugar-based Miticide/Ovicide/Insecticide is now listed by the Organic Materials Review Institute (OMRI®) for use in organic production. SucraShield is a unique product that provides fast acting control on a wide-range of soft-bodied pests that concern greenhouse growers, nursery men and farmers alike. Based on natural sugar esters, its exclusive mode of action creates holes in the target pests causing rapid death from desiccation and suffocation.

SucraShield controls hundreds of pests including, Mites, Aphids, Caterpillars, Thrips, Whiteflies, Mealy Bugs, Psyllids, etc. The effects of this fast acting product can be seen within minutes yet is gentle on beneficial insects and will not harm bees. When applied to fruits and vegetables they can be harvested and eaten that same day. SucraShield is EPA registered to protect a wide range of plants, vegetables, fruit and nut crops.

The Organic Materials Review Institute has listed SucraShield for use in organic production. OMRI® has assembled a national board of experts from the organic industry that review not only the ingredients contained in a product, but also the sources of those ingredients and how they are processed.

Products that pass the OMRI® review carry the OMRI® Listed Seal which assures the suitability of a product for organic production, handling and processing. "Natural Forces is very excited and honored to have SucraShield listed by OMRI®. It gives our product the stamp of approval that means everything to organic growers everywhere," states Devlin Reynolds, President of Natural Forces.

SucraShield is also registered with the Washington State Department of Agriculture (WSDA) as Permitted Input for Organic Farming and Gardening and allowed for use in organic agriculture under the USDA National Organic Program.
